BREATHTAKING VIEWS

AS A PLAYGROUND

During 3 days, Hanna, Juan and Laura rode along with 30 Merens horses from the highlands of the Pyrenees to the milder valleys.

After a trek on foot climbing over 1 km in altitude, we finally meet the horses at the Col de Cassaings. We have to gain their trust before we were able to share with them the descent to the valley, which was 100kms and barely 6000m elevation gain over the next 3 days. We make it to the Cirque de Campuls where we spend our first night under the tent... and under the rain.

We spent long hours rediscovering horses far from arenas, in conditions that pushed us out of our comfort zone. Tiny paths were the way we crossed the mountains sleeping in between bivouacs through mists and wind until we reached the calm of the Bispou summer pasture.

Beyond these endless landscapes, the encounter with the herd, it is about our relationship with horses.
